If you checked this…	Here's how Policy Governance® can help…
☑ Our board lacks focus about what we want the organization to achieve.	A method to focus your board's energy on setting the future direction for the organization
☑ There are "fuzzy" areas regarding board and CEO roles. There are some areas for which we aren't sure who is accountable, the board or the CEO.	A simple system that results in complete clarity of governance and management roles
☑ Our board doesn't have a clear set of criteria about the results expected from the CEO.	Written criteria specifying results expected from the CEO, along with rigorous accountability
☑ Our board sometimes feels like we are just "rubber stamping" the CEO's initiatives.	A way to lead from the front and add unique value as a board, while still allowing the CEO to manage
☑ Our board at times has to search through minutes to find a decision that was made in the past, and/or our policies haven't been reviewed for some time.	A simple, effective system for keeping all board decisions current and almost instantly retrievable
☑ Sometimes we are not sure that we are doing what is required of us as a board.	A way to stay "connected" to your shareholders, community or members and demonstrate accountability to them
☑ Meetings are too long; we spend a lot of time hearing reports and debating insignificant points.	Methods for using meeting time effectively, on matters of consequence
☑ The CEO generally has to obtain board approval of plans before proceeding.	A system to empower management to be creative, but fully accountable to the board
☑ We're not confident that sound risk management is in place to protect our organization's assets.	A comprehensive set of policies, based on awareness of current risk and regular intelligence-gathering regarding possible future risks.
